HOW did I ever survive?

Before cell phones, how did we...

1. Wake up in time for class?
2. Know the score from a football game in 1975?
3. Communicate with someone without actually talking to them?
4. Take instant photos and post them for everyone?
5. Get places, like did people actually use maps?
6. Entertain ourselves while waiting in line?
7. Call people. Did people seriously memorize phone numbers?

It’s hard to survive without a cell phone. Get a new one, with truly unlimited data, at Nex-Tech Wireless.

THE UNIVERSITY LEADER

Let's go back in time to the day long gone, the senior year in high school and college. The day when you packed your bags and left for a few different colleges. The day when my mind was, “I can’t wait for college.” The day when other college students were leaving their homes and attending a college. The day when people in the yellow polos led me around campus.
Childish Gambino moves closer to mainstream rap

Zach Walker

Review

Donald Glover is a busy man. When he isn’t acting in the popular TV show “Community,” he is writing, directing, and starring in his own movie. In addition, he created and stars in the hit series “30 Rock.” He has also released his first album, titled “Black Paper, White Paper.”

His album is quite different from his previous projects. In high school, he released a mixtape called “R Kelly V. Childish Gambino” and later decided to release another mixtape called “To the Tours.”

His latest album, “Black Paper, White Paper,” is a departure from his previous projects. It features a variety of styles and sounds, from soulful R&B to hip-hop.

Gambino’s music is a combination of his love for movies and his talent for rapping. He has been known to incorporate movie quotes and references into his songs, making them a unique experience for fans.

Gambino’s music is also a reflection of his personal life. He has been open about his struggles with depression and anxiety, and his music often deals with these themes.

Overall, “Black Paper, White Paper” is a great album that showcases his talent and creativity. It is a must-listen for any fan of Hip-Hop.

Art students’ mural brings taste of Italy to Napoli’s

Tigers dominate Swedes 7-1

Tigers dominated Swedes 7-1 in their exhibition match. The match was a strong display of the team's offensive capabilities, with multiple goals scored through well-placed shots and teamwork.

The Tigers capitalized on a series of set plays, with several goals coming from free kicks and crosses from the wings. The team's persistence and tactical play were evident throughout the match, with players working well together to create scoring opportunities.

Defensively, the Tigers were strong, with a solid backline that prevented multiple Swede attempts on goal. The goalkeeper also made crucial saves to maintain the lead.

Despite the dominant performance, the Tigers were not flawless, with a few missed opportunities and errors in possession. However, the overall performance was promising and bodes well for future matches.

The win against the Swedes, while important, is just one in a series of exhibition matches leading up to the regular season. The Tigers will continue to work on improving their performance and preparation for the upcoming challenges.

"Premium Rush" not a premium choice

Downtown Hays fills with art during seasonal event

Carleigh Albers

Generations gathered on Main Street Friday for the fall art walk. Collections of local art were featured in the brick streets of Hays. There were as many vendors selling their wares as there were crowds enjoying them. One of the most eye-catching featured was a mural painted on Main Street that made this piece interesting for anyone who happened to be walking by. It was a nice way for the community to have a visual reminder of the town's history and culture.
